

July 24, 2003

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Marcelo Lopes, Student Writer,
(860) 465-0686 or lopesma@easternct.edu

Dwight Bachman, Interim Director of University Relations,
(860) 465-5114 or bachman@easternct.edu

ECSU to Host Police Camp

Willimantic, CT – Nearly 350 youth and adults from thirty (30) police departments across the state will participate in the first ever Eastern Connecticut State University (ECSU) Police Camp, from July 27 to August 2.

Participants will encounter a broad range of police training methods on what it takes to become a police officer. They will practice driving real police cars and take biking classes. A dispatch facility will actually communicate with the students in the field to simulate genuine crime fighting situations.

“We are mixing classroom and real world experience that will give kids a keen insight for the police department environment,” said Alex Motoc, an officer with the Eastern Connecticut State University Department of Public Safety.

The physically intense camp will also include classes on criminal theory and legal aspects of law enforcement.

For more information about Eastern’s Police Camp, please call (860) 465-5310.

#####

Eastern Connecticut State University is part of the Connecticut State University System.