Run for Warmth

Approximately 300 children from the five Windham elementary schools recently participated in the Interschool Walk for Warmth at Windham Middle School. The children ran around the school's track to pay for crafts and educational activities going on around the field. The event was a preliminary, kid-focused version of the larger, community-wide Walk for Warmth, which will be held on Nov. 23. Walk for Warmth raises funds for the Windham Area Interfaith Ministry’s energy assistance program. The Interschool Walk for Warmth was a collaborative effort between the Eastern Connecticut State University’s Center for Community Engagement and Windham Public Schools.
