Emotional message

Janaya Khan, co-founder of ‘Black Lives Matter Toronto,’ spoke during Eastern Connecticut State University’s University Hour Wednesday afternoon in the Fine Arts Instructional Center. Khan also known as ‘Future’ in the Black Lives Matter movement, is a black, queer, gender-nonconforming activist, staunch Afro-futurist, social-justice educator and boxer based in Toronto, Canada. Khan is committed to black liberation, transformational justice and indigenous sovereignty and operates through a black trans-feminist lens. The event was sponsored by the Intercultural Center, Pride Center and Women’s Center.
