

Núñez Tells Graduates “You are Tomorrow’s Leaders. Tomorrow Starts Today!”

More than 1,000 undergraduates, along with 106 graduate students, heard the roars and cheers of thousands of their family members and friends as they celebrated their accomplishment at Eastern’s 120th Commencement Exercises on May 23 at the XL Center in Hartford. Half of the undergraduates were the first in their families to earn a bachelor’s degree.

President Elsa Núñez told graduates not to sit on the sidelines, but to join others working to solve pressing problems. “It is your time. You are tomorrow’s leaders, and tomorrow, my friends, starts today.”

Commencement speaker Michael P. Meotti, commissioner of higher education and a former state senator, talked about attending his 35th college reunion this year and how he valued his education at Georgetown University. “The value of those years has shaped my soul.”

Connecticut State University System (CSUS) Chancellor David Carter told the graduates, “In the days ahead, you will continue to define who you are and what you stand for. Today, we celebrate your achievements and your success.”

Quoting Carl Sagan, CSUS Trustee John Sholtis said, “Somewhere, something incredible is waiting to be known.” Sholtis told the graduates to push the envelope, to “never stop questioning,” and promised that they would achieve things “we can only imagine sitting here today.”

Albert Vertefeuille, a member of Connecticut’s Higher Education Department Board of Governors, told the class that graduation “does not relieve you of your responsibility to continue to grow.”

Eastern Awards Honorary Degree to Astrophysicist Neil deGrasse Tyson

In his remarks thanking Eastern for the honorary degree he was given by the University, astrophysicist Neil deGrasse Tyson told the Class of 2010, “Try to fix what we messed up because I don’t know who else to turn to other than the freshly minted class of 2010. Don’t take things for granted.”

Among Tyson’s nine books is his memoir, “The Sky is Not the Limit: Adventures of an Urban Astrophysicist” and “Origins: Fourteen Billion Years of Cosmic Evolution,” co-written with Donald Goldsmith.

“Origins” is the companion book to the 2004 PBS-NOVA four-part mini-series “Origins,” in which Tyson served as on-camera host. Tyson is the first occupant of the Frederick P. Rose Directorship of the Hayden Planetarium.

Eastern Students Win Barnard Scholars Award

Casey Bessette and Douglas Hackenyos won prestigious Henry Barnard Distinguished Student Awards, presented on May 6 to 12 Connecticut State University System seniors who have maintained at least a 3.7 grade point average and have a record of substantial voluntary service to their universities and communities. Bessette, a theatre major, has distinguished herself as a performer in a wide range of dramatic and comedic roles. Her work as Celia in Shakespeare’s “As You Like It” resulted in her being singled out as an Irene Ryan Scholarship candidate, for which she competed at this year’s Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival. In addition, Bessette has written an original research paper on the history of regional theatre in Windham; served as a publications assistant in support of Professor David Pellegrini’s work as book review editor for the New England Theatre Journal; served as a deejay for Eastern’s campus radio station and as a member of the University’s Drama Society; and for more than four years, has lent her time and talents to the Riverfront Children’s Center where she volunteers in the preschool classroom, all while maintaining a 3.97 GPA.

Douglas, a biology major and biochemistry minor with a 3.77 cumulative GPA (and a 3.96 GPA in his major), is a role model in the classroom and has been named to the Dean’s List every semester he has been at Eastern. He is also in Eastern’s University Honors Program, and graduated after completing an honors thesis on the respiratory physiology of anadromous fish — fish like the salmon who swim upstream to breed.

Douglas served as captain of Eastern’s men’s lacrosse team for the past two years, helping the team capture the Little East Conference regular-season and playoff championships in 2009. As a member of the Student Athlete Advisory Committee, he has set up Halloween events for local children and has organized the collection of care packages for American troops fighting in Afghanistan. Douglas was recently accepted into the Doctor of Pharmacy Program at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences in Worcester, where he will begin graduate studies this fall with the goal of becoming a community-based pharmacist.

Eastern Sports Honors

Students Win Major Athletic Awards

Six students won Eastern's major athletic awards this spring. Courtney Bedocs of Hamden was presented the Bonnie J. Edmondson Senior Female Sports Person-of-the-Year award. Bedocs was a four-year member of the lacrosse program and an English and Education major who was a member of the Education honor society, Kappa Delta Pi, and the National Leadership Honor Society, Omicron Delta Kappa.

Maxim Fantl of West Hartford won the Francis E. Geissler Senior Male Sports Person of the Year award. The two-time team soccer captain and 2010 team lacrosse captain earned a multitude of individual athletic and academic awards at the institutional, conference, regional and national levels. Last fall, Fantl was named to the NSCAA Scholar All-America first team and was a second-team CoSIDA/ESPN

The Magazine Academic All-District choice. He earned a spot on the Little East Conference academic honor roll in all three years of eligibility in both sports (minimum 3.30 overall GPA) and received an Eastern/E-Club Outstanding Scholar-Athlete Award (minimum 3.50 overall GPA) in both years of eligibility.

Molly Rathburn of Hebron was honored with the Female Athlete of the Year award. As Division III's most dominant pitcher, the first-team All-America and ECAC and Little East Conference Pitcher-of-the-Year led the Warriors to a program-tying 39 wins, their first regional championship in 18 years and a third-place finish in the NCAA Division III Tournament. Rathburn also doubled as the team's top hitter this year, recording a .402 batting average and also leading the team in RBI (38), doubles (10) and home runs (9).

Daniela Marchitto of Orange was named Female Rookie of the Year. A two-sport starter, Marchitto helped the soccer team to the Little East Conference playoff championship and the lacrosse team to a share of the conference regular-season title and a berth in the playoff finals.

Joshua Fitzpatrick of Beacon Falls was named Male Rookie of the Year. Competing in the pole vault, long jump and triple jump, Fitzpatrick earned All-Little East Conference and All-New England Alliance in all three events – indoors and outdoors.

A record 40 Eastern Connecticut State University student-athletes representing 14 intercollegiate programs were awarded an E-Club Scholar-Athlete Award for 2009/10 in the 29th year of the awards program.

All student-athletes having achieved junior or senior athletic and academic eligibility with cumulative GPAs of at least 3.15 qualify for a scholar-athlete award.
