OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK) is a national leadership honor society for college men and women. It was founded at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, on December 3, 1914. The founders formulated the idea that leaders of exceptional quality and versatility in college life should cooperate in worthwhile endeavors, and that outstanding students, faculty and staff should meet on a basis of mutual interest, understanding and helpfulness. Omicron Delta Kappa was the first honor society of national scope to give recognition and honor for meritorious leadership and service in extracurricular activities, to promote outstanding scholarship, and to encourage the development of general campus citizenship. Today there are more than 235 colleges and universities with ODK Circles throughout the United States.

Membership in OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

Membership is awarded primarily to junior and senior students. Students enrolled in graduate and professional schools as well as members of the faculty, administration and alumni may also be invited into membership. Exemplary character, responsible leadership, service in campus life, as well as outstanding scholarship, are indispensable qualifications for membership. The outstanding men and women who are initiated tonight have provided, as a group, outstanding service and leadership in a broad range of campus activities and programs. The students inducted today have a mean grade point average of 3.65 on a 4.0 scale.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA at Eastern Connecticut State University

The Eastern Connecticut State University Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa was installed on May 13, 1994. Eastern is the first and only circle in New England. To date, over 700 faculty, students, alumni, and honorary members have been inducted into Eastern’s circle. Today 37 individuals will be initiated into the Eastern Circle of ODK.
