ABOUT THE COURSE

This course prepares students to create short documentary films in a foreign country. During the 10-day travel component, university students explore documentary filmmaking while immersed in the vibrant culture of Marrakesh, Morocco. Students work in small crews of 3-4 people, each partnered with a local social impact organization, to create a micro-documentary highlighting community initiatives. Each participant contributes to one film, gaining hands-on experience in storytelling, collaboration, and production. Students will generate portfolio material via experiential learning trip.
