

Department of Psychological Science

Student Research Presentations

Students in the Psychological Science department today present their research on campus at two conferences: Psychapalooza and the Celebrating Research Excellence and Artistic Talent at Eastern (CREATE) conference.

Psychapalooza is open to students enrolled in Eastern's psychology courses and is held at the end of the fall and spring semesters. It features a poster session and a small number of oral presentations. Every student in PSY 327 (Research Methods II) must present their research project at this conference in the semester that they are enrolled in PSY 327. Before it was called Psychapalooza, it was known as Psychological Science Night, and then the Psychological Science Poster Session. This conference was created as a fall-semester conference option for students back when Psychology Day (see below) was offered every May. After Psychology Day was discontinued, this conference was held twice per year.

CREATE is open to all Eastern students and is held every April. Before it was rebranded CREATE, each school had its own research conference. For psychology students, that conference was known as the Arts and Sciences Research Conference and Exhibition.

Students in the past had the option of presenting their research at Psychology Day. It was a Connecticut State University research forum for psychology students from Central, Eastern, Southern, and Western. It was always held on what used to be the reading day in the spring semester, right before finals week. Each school would take turns hosting it. It became difficult to host when the Board of Regents eliminated the reading day. The last Psychology Day was held in 2018.

Below are the presentations from Psychapalooza and CREATE in reverse chronological order. At the bottom of this page are the Psychology Day presentations. Oral presentations are denoted by "P" and poster presentations by "O". Poster awards are denoted by an asterisk. If you see any errors on this page or if you have any of the missing information, please contact the department webmaster, Dr. Lanagan-Leitzel, at lanaganleitzel at easternct.edu.
